Position

This position is a nine-month, tenure-track appointment to begin in the fall of 2012.

Rank/Salary

Assistant Professor. Salary is competitive and commensurate with experience and background. Summer teaching is contingent on student enrollment and funding.

Summary

We are seeking a strong scholar in the areas of Human Resource Development, Career and Technical Education or Organization Learning dedicated to learning and performance across disciplines and professions. Collaboration with colleagues in scholarly and professional pursuits is expected. Successful candidates will demonstrate excellence in research, teaching and service scholarship.

The Department of Learning Technologies (lt.unt.edu) offers courses in applied technology and performance improvement, educational computing, and career and technical education, instructional design, and training and development with degrees available at the undergraduate, masters, and doctoral level.

With about 36,000 students, UNT is the nation's 33rd largest university. As the largest, most comprehensive university in Dallas-Fort Worth, UNT drives the North Texas region. UNT offers 97 bachelor’s, 88 master’s and 40 doctoral degree programs, many nationally and internationally recognized. A student-focused public research university, UNT is the flagship of the UNT System.

Academic and Professional Qualifications

The selected candidate will have an earned doctorate in Human Resource Development, Organizational Learning, Performance Improvement, Career and Technical Education, Organizational Behavior, Human Resource Management, or a closely related field at time of hire; blended academic credentials with organizational experience suitable to a scholar/scholar-practitioner program; experience in online learning environments in education and training; and evidence of research, teaching and service scholarship.

Preference will be given to candidates with evidence of teaching, research and service scholarship; experience in serving on dissertation committees; experience in online instruction; experience in obtaining external funding, and experience with collaborative scholarship.

Application Procedure

All applicants must apply online using facultyjobs.unt.edu. All applicants must submit: 1) a cover letter identifying your experiences in meeting the academic and professional qualifications noted above; 2) current and complete curriculum vita; 3) at least one example of research scholarship; and 4) names of three (3) references with full contact information.
